- Claimant's damages, if any, were caused by the acts or omissions of third parties over which Respondents had no control.

- Respondents did not know or, in the exercise of reasonable care, could not have known of the purported facts upon which Claimant bases his claims.
- Claimant received account statements and confirmations and did not object to the transactions in his accounts.
- The applicable federal and state statutes of limitation bar Claimant's claims.

- Claimant failed to exercise due diligence in connection with making the investments complained of in the Statement of Claim.
